National treasure

National treasure "Eleven-faced Kannon statue" (Omido Kannon-ji Temple)

It is a valuable cultural property that conveys the glory of the Tenpyo era to those living today. This statue was made in a state-owned workshop using a technique called "Mokushin-kanshitsu", and is a masterpiece that represents Japan with its stable image and careful expression to the smallest detail.

Shuonan Ikkyu-ji Temple

It started as Myosyoji Temple, which was created as a Zen hall by Daio Kokushi. It is commonly known as "Ikkyu-ji" because Ikkyu Zenji spent his last years there until he died at the age of 88. Each season of the year creates a different charm and atmosphere in the precincts, and many people visit here.

The town where Ikkyu lived

Kyotanabe City has been selected as a sacred place for the anime "Ikkyu-san" by the Anime Tourism Association as one of the "88 Japanese Sacred Anime Spots I Want to Visit." In addition, as a proof of certification, Kyotanabe City received a certification plate from the association in January 2020.
